HISTORICAL OUTLINE AND BIBLIOGRAPHY OF ATTORNEYS GENERAL REPORTS AND OPINIONS

From Their Beginning Through 1936

Compiled by LEWIS W. MORSE

Law Librarian and Assistant Professor of Law, Cornell Law School

In preparing this material no attempt has been made to give a complete historical treatise on the office of attorney general in each state or territory. Authorities are cited to show when the office was created and whether or not there is a requirement for the filing and publication of the reports.

Grateful acknowledgment and appreciation is made to my secretary, M. Elizabeth Prior, for her conscientious, painstaking and capable work in assisting with the completion of this task. Appreciation is also extended to William H. Dunham and Stanley D. Metzger for their fine assistance. Acknowledgment is also made to the various Attorney General offices, State Libraries, University Libraries, Law Library of Congress, Historical Societies, New York Public Library, and Law School Libraries for their kind help and cooperation.

ALABAMA

The office of Attorney General dates from 1807, when the territorial legislature provided for the appointment of an attorney general for certain specified portions of Mississippi Territory, one of which included the country now embraced within the State of Alabama. In 1818, an act was passed, laying off Alabama Territory in three districts, and providing an attorney general in each, the compensation of each to be $450 per year. The office was carried into the Constitution of the State in 1819, the attorney general to be elected by joint vote of the legislature, and to hold office four years. Since 1876 he has been elected by the people. The Constitution of 1868 made the Attorney General one of the executive officers of the State, the office prior to that date being classed with the judiciary. Soon after the formation of the State, the attorney general, in addition to other duties, was required to perform the duties of solicitor in the judicial circuit which embraced the seat of the State government. The code of 1852 required him to give bond in the sum of $10,000, or more when in the opinion of the governor the public interest demanded it. In 1868 the office was reorganized, and the powers and duties enlarged.

Until the Code of 1867, section 108, subdivision 5, there was no requirement that the attorney general should make reports. The law referred to provided that he must in November annually make to the governor a report, in which among other things he should make such suggestions, tending to the suppression of crime, as he may deem proper. The present statutory requirement is that he shall accompany his report "with such suggestions tending to the suppression of crime and the improvement of the criminal administration as he may deem proper." In 1884, the first printed report was issued, covering every two years regularly from that date through 1916. However, there was no provision for printing the report until the adoption of an act of February 21, 1893, amending the subdivision referred to, which also materially enlarged the scope of the contents of the report. This also prescribed that the report "also contain such opinions of the attorney general as may be deemed of public interest." The biennial report for 1894-96 was the first to contain copies of opinions. These have appeared regularly, with one or two exceptions, in subsequent reports and constitute an interesting body of literature, particularly in the field of official administration, State and county. The reports include statements of the number of criminal cases disposed of in the entire year, as shown by reports of solicitors, the number of convictions, the number of acquittals, number of nolle prosequies, number of cases appealed or otherwise disposed of, number of sentences to death, number of sentences to the penitentiary, number of other sentences, including fines, with totals.

"No index covering the Alabama Attorney General Reports has been published."—Letter, dated Dec. 11, 1936, from the Alabama Department of Archives and History, Montgomery.

ALASKA

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of Alaska was created in 1916. (Laws of Alaska, 1915, Ch. 77, Sec. 1.)

He was required to make a report of the work and expenditures of the office and upon needed legislation or amendments to existing laws thru the governor to the legislature at each regular session. (Laws of Alaska, 1915, Ch. 77, Sec. 3.)

"We know of no index or digest published covering the reports and opinions of the Alaska Attorney General."—Letter, July 27, 1936, from the Office of Attorney General, Territory of Alaska, Juneau, Alaska.

ARIZONA

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of Arizona was created in 1864. (Howell Code, 1864, Chap. XVI.)

In 1866 the office of attorney general was abolished by act of the legislature to take effect Jan. 1, 1867. (Acts of Third Leg. of Ariz. Terr., 1866, p. 45.)

In 1868 the office of attorney general was again created, to begin Jan. 1, 1869. (Acts of Arizona Territory, 1868, p. 29, Sec. 1.)

In 1875, the office was again abolished. (Acts of Ariz. Territory, 1875, p. 51.)

In 1883 the office was again created. (Acts of Arizona Territory, 1883, No. 75, p. 213.) It has continued in existence since then.

During the period of the Territory of Arizona the attorney general was required to report to the governor within ten days next preceding the meeting of the legislature biennially. (Acts of Arizona Territory, 1868, p. 30, Sec. 6.) In 1887 he was required to report to the governor annually. (1887 Revised Statutes of Arizona, Chapter 11, Section 2, paragraph 11.)

"No doubt the attorney general has made these reports annually to the governor, as required by law, but so far as I can ascertain they have not been published except for the few which you list."—Letter, dated August 20, 1936, from Margaret D. Stevens, Law Librarian, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona.

The attorney general reports during the Territorial days were usually very perfunctory affairs and unless they were embodied in the report of the Governor to the Secretary of the Interior their usual fate was to get lost."—Letter, dated March 4, 1936, from Mulford Winsor, Law and Legislative Reference Librarian, State Library of Arizona, Phoenix, Arizona.

ARKANSAS

"The office of Attorney General as at present constituted was established by the legislature Feb. 4, 1843, but published reports of the opinions were not required by law until the enactment of Act 131, 38th general assembly approved March 24, 1911 (Public Acts page 91). Attorney General Norwood's report 1911-12 throws some light upon the matter:

'Previous to the passage of this act, the statutes of the State of Arkansas did not require the attorney general to make a report. Some of the former attorneys general may have voluntarily made reports, but I have never seen a copy of any such reports, and there are none on file in this office.'—page 7.

"Prior to 1843, the State was represented by an Attorney General elected by the legislature for each judicial district, as provided by the Constitution of 1836, article six, section thirteen.

"I have seen all the reports listed herewith. They appear in the Arkansas collected documents. Examination of all other volumes of the collected documents failed to reveal any other reports, although it is possible they were inserted in some volumes and left out of others, as is known to be the case in some instances with other state reports.

"These are all the reports available in this state as far as is known. If others were printed, they are not to be found in the collection of state documents in the state university at Fayetteville, which collection is practically complete from 1836 to the present time."—Letter received from Bill Delaney, Orion Book Service, Fort Smith, Arkansas, dated March 18, 1936.

"Between the years 1843 and 1878, opinions of the attorneys general were published sometimes by state officials in order to clarify their records. For example, in the report of the swamp land commissioner of 1857 is published the opinions of the attorney general on legal questions pertaining to land script. Scattered through other state documents are excerpts and references to opinions of the attorneys general. It appears that the inclusion of these opinions was voluntary on the part of the official who asked for them.

"This is perhaps the explanation for the non-appearance of separate reports of the attorneys general from 1892 to 1910. It is possible that separate reports were issued in small numbers and copies may yet come to light. Many Arkansas documents were issued in editions of 300 to 500 copies."—Letter received from Bill Delaney, dated April 27, 1936.

CALIFORNIA

The office of Attorney General of California was created by the 1849 Constitution of California, Art. V, Sec. 18.

It was required that the attorney general shall report to the governor on December 15th, annually, the condition of the affairs of his department and make suggestions as shall appear to him calculated to improve the laws of the state. (Statutes of California, 1850, Chap. II, p. 55, Sec. 5.)

"No digest or index has been published covering the reports of the attorney general."—Letter, April 17, 1936, from Seibert L. Sefton, Deputy Attorney General.

COLORADO

The office of Attorney General existed during the time of the Territory of Jefferson. (Laws of Jefferson Territory, 1860, p. 173.)

When the Territory of Colorado was organized by Congress, it was provided that there should be an attorney for the territory. (12 U. S. Statutes at Large, Chap. LIX, Sec. 10, p. 175.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Colorado was created in 1876. The attorney general was required to report to the governor at least twenty days preceding each regular session of the general assembly. (1876 Constitution of Colorado, Article IV, Secs. 1, 17.)

"No index or digest has ever been published of the Colorado Attorneys General Reports."—Letter, dated April 20, 1936, from the Supreme Court Library, Denver, Colorado.

DELAWARE

The office of Attorney General of Delaware existed during the period of the Colonial Government.

The office of Attorney General of the State of Delaware was created in the first Constitution. (1792 Constitution of Delaware, Art. III, Sec. 8; Art. VIII, Sec. 5.)

"The laws of the State of Delaware do not provide that the Attorney General shall issue any report and all of his opinions are obtainable either in his office or the office to which given.

"Delaware and Rhode Island are the only two states of the Union in which the Attorney General is in full charge of all criminal prosecutions."—Letter dated Dec. 10, 1936, from Office of the Attorney General, Wilmington, Delaware.

FLORIDA

There were no Attorneys General during the period of the Territory of Florida. (Letter, Oct. 9, 1936, from the Office of the Attorney General, Tallahassee, Florida.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Florida was created by the 1845, Constitution, Article V, Sec. 16.

The Attorney General was required in 1845 to make a written report to the Governor, five days before the first day of every session of the General Assembly, as to the effect and operation of the acts of the last previous session; the decisions of the courts thereon, and referring to the previous legislation on the subject, with such suggestions as in his opinion the public interest may demand; and this report is required to be given to the Legislature by the Governor with his first message. (Laws of Florida, 1845, Chap. 2, p. 6, Sec. 5.)

"There is no index or digest to the Attorney General Reports and Opinions of Florida."—Letter, dated July 14, 1936, from the Librarian, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida.

GEORGIA

The office of Attorney General existed in Georgia as a separate and distinct office of Government from the establishment of the Provincial Government in 1754 until the adoption of the Constitution of 1789. The reorganization of the Judiciary by an Act of Dec. 23, 1789 placed the office of Attorney General in commission with the duties divided between two persons styled the Attorney General and the Solicitor General, one to attend the Eastern Judicial Circuit and the other the Western and this arrangement continued until 1796. The Act of Feb. 23, 1796 reorganized the Judiciary, provided for three Judicial Circuits and again placed the office of Attorney General in commission, with the duties divided between the Attorney General and two Solicitors General. The first two Attorneys General were residents of the Western Circuit; the next three of the Eastern; and all others residents of the Middle, the Circuit in which the Capital was located. (Solicitor General of the Circuit which embraced the seat of Government was ex-officio, Attorney General. Code of Georgia, 1861, p. 79.) In 1868 with the adoption of the Constitution of that year the office was restored to its early dignity, the Attorney General being made Legal Adviser of the Executive Department and Representative of the State in all criminal and civil cases. (Constitution of 1868, Art. 5, Sec. 7.) He is elected biennially by the people and takes office in January following the general elections. (Prepared by Ruth Blair, State Historian and Director of Georgia's Department of Archives, Atlanta, Georgia.)

In 1828 it was required that the Attorney General and Solicitor General make an Annual Report of the State and Standing of the Claims in favor of the State under their control, to the Comptroller General at the commencement of the session of the Legislature (Georgia Acts, 1828, p. 94, Sec. 2).

In 1881 all public officers (including the Attorney General) were required to make and publish annually their official reports. It was specified that a year for official reports was distinct from the fiscal year and would include the twelve months ending thirty days next preceding the regular meeting of the General Assembly. (Acts of Georgia, 1881, p. 29, Sec. II.)

In 1923 the Appropriation Act of 1923 (Acts 1923, p. 26) provided that no report should be printed without the approval of the Governor and then only as a part of a Blue Book. Separate reports were to be printed only by unanimous vote of the Commissioners of Printing. The Opinions of the Attorney General, not being of binding effect, should not be printed as a part of his report. No Blue Book was ever issued. A similar provision is in Acts 1927, p. 9-10 and Acts 1929, p. 9-10. Since the operation of the 1929 Act ending January 1932, only those reports absolutely essential to the conduct of the State's affairs have been printed owing to the shortage of revenue through 1934. (Letter, Nov. 6, 1936, from the State Librarian, Georgia State Library, Atlanta, Georgia.)

HAWAII

The office of Attorney General of Hawaii has existed as far back as 1845 in the time of the Kingdom. (Hawaii Statute Laws, 1845-46 [Vol. 1, 1846 ed.] page 9.)

In 1862 it was enacted that the King may appoint an Attorney General. It was also enacted that the Attorney General should report to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court annually on or before the first Monday in January. (Hawaiian Islands Laws, 1862, Monarchy, Sec. I, p. 14; Sec. II, p. 15.)

In 1894 when the Republic was established the office of Attorney General was provided for. It was required of him that he present a report to the President not later than the last Wednesday in February in each year. (Constitution of the Republic of Hawaii, 1894, Art. 21, Sec. 1; Art. 35, Sec. 1.)

When Hawaii became a Territory in 1900, the Organic Act provided for the appointment of an Attorney General. (Organic Act of the Territory of Hawaii, 1900, Sec. 80.)

The Legislature of Hawaii required in 1923 that the Attorney General make a biennial report to the Legislature of the transactions and business of his Department. (Laws of the Territory of Hawaii, 1923, Art. 35, Sec. 1432, p. 35.)

The opinions were separately printed and were consecutively numbered beginning in 1915. (The 1915-16 copy containing Opinions Nos. 398-620 is the first printed copy of which there is any record.)

IDAHO

The office of Territorial Attorney General of Idaho was created in 1885. (Laws of the Territory of Idaho, 1885, p. 31.)

It was made the duty of the territorial attorney general to report to the governor prior to the day on which the Legislative Assembly was appointed to meet in regular session. (Revised Statutes of Idaho Territory, 1887, Sec. 160, Chap. 3, p. 73; Sec. 250, Chap. 9, p. 86.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Idaho was created by the 1889 Constitution of Idaho, Art. IV, Sec. 1.

It was made his duty to submit his report to the governor at least 20 days preceding each regular session of the legislature. The governor would transmit these reports to the legislature in his messages. (1889 Constitution of Idaho, Art. IV, Sec. 17.)

No requirement for the printing and publishing of the report of the attorney general was made until 1903. (Laws of 1903, p. 149, Sec. 2.)

ILLINOIS

During the days of the Northwest Territory and the Indiana Territory, both of which Illinois was once a part, there were officers in the territory who prosecuted the laws of the United States.

When Illinois became a State in 1818, the Constitution of Illinois made provision for the creation of the Office of Attorney General. It was made permissive for the General Assembly to appoint an Attorney General and define his duties. An act was passed by the General Assembly and approved in March, 1819, concerning the appointment and definition of his duties. (Constitution of 1818, Schedule, Sec. 10.)

No requirement for a report from the Attorney General was made until the 1870 Constitution. (Constitution of 1870, Article V, Sec. 21.)

It has been found that the reports of the Attorney General have been published separately in pamphlet form in certain instances, but the same material is found to be included in the bound volume covering the same period. The pagination differs, but the material is complete, however.

"There has been no index or digest of the Illinois Attorney General Reports and Opinions issued."—Letter from the Illinois State Library, dated May 4, 1936, Springfield, Illinois.

INDIANA

During the time of the Northwest Territory and the Indiana Territory, there were officers who prosecuted the laws of the United States and represented the Territory.

The Constitution of 1816 did not provide for an Attorney General, but by the Act of December 31, 1821, the office of Attorney General was established by the Legislature. (Laws of Indiana, 1821, Ch. 39, pp. 72-74.)

"Pursuant to this act, the Legislature on the same day (December 31, 1821), elected Harbin H. Moore, of Corydon. The Revised Laws of 1824 lists the act of December 31, 1821, but the Legislature which met in Indianapolis in January, 1825, repealed the act providing for an attorney general, so it was provided (January 20, 1826), that the prosecutor of the fifth judicial circuit, which included Marion county, should 'be compelled to superintend and prosecute or defend on the part of the state, all pleas whatsoever that may be appealed or brought up by writ of error to the Supreme Court.' In other words, the prosecutor of this judicial circuit became in effect the attorney general of the state.

"The Constitution of 1851, like that of 1816, made no provision for the office of Attorney General, nor did the Legislature make any provision for the prosecutor of the circuit to which Marion county was attached to handle the suits of the state.

The office of attorney general came into existence as a result of the act of February 1, 1855, the act providing that it should be filled by the qualified voters of the state. The General Assembly, on March 5, 1855, appointed James Morrison to fill the office until the next election."—Monks, Leander J. Courts and Lawyers of Indiana, vol 2, p. 390-391. Indianapolis, Federal Pub. Co., 1916.

The acts providing for his election and defining his duties, but not requiring any reports were passed Feb. 21, 1855 (Laws of Indiana, 1855, Ch. 3, p. 16) and June 3, 1861 (Laws of Indiana, 1861, Spec. Sess. p. 14).

The first requirement of the Attorney General to give opinions in certain cases and to keep a record thereof, and an account of moneys collected, in a 'substantially bound book', and to report to the Secretary of State annually on November 1, all fines and forfeitures, was included in an act passed by the Legislature, March 10, 1873. No other report, however, seems to have been required. (Laws of Indiana, 1873, Ch. 7, p. 18.) In 1855 the public printing act required the publishing of biennial reports by the attorney general (Laws of Indiana, 1855, Ch. 86, Sec. 9, p. 217.)

Since 1917 the Reports and Opinions have been published separately, the reports appearing in the Indiana Year Book.

No indexes or digest of the Attorney General Reports or Opinions have been located in the Indiana State Library.

IOWA

"The office of the Attorney General of Iowa did not exist during the days of the Territory of Iowa. There was the office of District Prosecutor, who was appointed by the Territorial Governor, with the consent and advice of the Territorial Council. Each judicial district had its prosecutor. The office of Attorney General of Iowa was not established until 1853.

For your convenience, we list here the district attorneys for the Territory, as shown on Page 42 of the Iowa Official Register for the years 1931-32:

Isaac Van Allen, appointed 1838
Charles Weston, appointed 1840
John D. Deshler, appointed 1843
Edward Johnston, appointed 1845 and 1846."

Letter received from the Historical, Memorial and Art Department of Iowa, Des Moines, dated October 7, 1936.

The office of Attorney General of the State of Iowa was created in 1853. (Laws of Iowa, 1853, Chap. 107.)

The 1857 Constitution of Iowa, Art. 5, Sec. 12 provides for the election of an Attorney General by the people.

In 1897 the Attorney General was required to report to the Governor, preceding each General Assembly, the condition of his office, opinions rendered and business transacted of public interest. (Code of Iowa, 1897, Chap. 3, Sec. 209.)

"There is no index or digest for the Attorney General's Reports."—Letter, dated July 29, 1936, from the State University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa.

KANSAS

The Legislature of the Territory of Kansas enacted a statute in 1854 stating that an Attorney shall be appointed for the Territory. (Statutes of the Territory of Kansas, 1855, p. 37, Sec. 29.)

The Office of Attorney General of the State of Kansas was created in 1859. The Attorney General was required at least ten days preceding each regular session of the Legislature to report to the Governor, who shall transmit it to the Legislature. (1859 Constitution of Kansas, Art. I, Secs. 1, 16.)

No reports were printed and published regularly until 1875.

"No digest to the Kansas Attorney General Reports has ever been published."—Letter, April 18, 1936, from Helen M. McFarland, Librarian of the Kansas State Historical Society, Topeka, Kansas.

"The report of the Attorney General from 1931 to 1935 has not yet been published, and because it is so voluminous it will not be available for some time. A report for this office covering my first term, 1935-1937 will be published later this year."—Letter, dated July 9, 1936, from Clarence V. Beck, Attorney General of the State of Kansas, Topeka, Kansas.

KENTUCKY

The office of Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Kentucky was created in 1792. (Constitution of Kentucky, 1792, Art. II, Sec. XVI.)

It was made his duty to report to the governor biennially beginning Dec. 31, 1909. (Acts of Kentucky, 1908, Ch. 32, Sec. 7, p. 89.)

"No index or digest to these reports has been published."—Letter, Dec. 7, 1936, from the Kentucky State Library, Frankfort, Kentucky.

Since 1929 the General Assembly of Kentucky has made no appropriation for the publication of these reports. No printed opinions are available for these years and there is no record other than those of the files in the office of the Attorney General at Frankfort, Kentucky.

MAINE

The office of Attorney General of the State of Maine was created by the 1819 Constitution of Maine, Article V, Sec. 8.

In 1839, the Attorney General was required to report to the Governor and Council in the month of December, annually. The report must be like that required of county attorneys, and must contain an abstract of the several reports made to him by the county attorneys. (Public Laws of Maine, 1839, Chap. 408, Sec. 2.)

"We do not know of any digest or index that has been published covering the reports of the Maine Attorney General."—Letter, dated July 9, 1936, from the Maine State Library, Augusta, Maine.

"The office of the Attorney General states that the Attorney General may publish a report covering his four year term of office but this is not at all definite. However, the fact that there have been no reports since 1933 does not mean that the printing of the report of the Attorney General has been discontinued."—Letter, dated July 9, 1936, from the Maine State Library, Augusta, Maine.

MARYLAND

The office of Attorney General of Maryland existed as far back as 1715 when there was an act passed regulating his fees. (1715 Laws of Maryland, Chapter 48.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Maryland was created in the 1777 Constitution, but no provision was made requiring a report by him. This office was abolished by the 1851 Constitution, but was reestablished by the 1864 Constitution, Art. V, p. 56.

In 1916 a Department of Law was created by statute. (1916 Laws of Maryland, Ch. 560.) The duties of the Attorney General are prescribed, and he is required to make a written report to the Governor on January 1, annually of the business and proceedings of the Department of Law during the preceding year, together with an itemized statement of his receipts and disbursements during the preceding fiscal year; and such recommendations, if any, as he may consider appropriate to make. Such annual report, together with the opinions rendered by the Attorney General or his department during the preceding calendar year, shall be published annually in bound volumes.

"There is no separate index or digest to the Maryland Attorney General Reports or Opinions."—Letter, dated December 19th, 1936, from the University of Maryland Law Library, Baltimore, Maryland.

The following is an attempt to give a clear and succinct statement in chronological order of the several Attorneys General and Solicitors General of Massachusetts down to the time of the adoption of the Constitution of the Commonwealth.¹

The subject is involved in so many intricacies that it is not surprising that the official list prepared and annually issued by the clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives is not only so incomplete as to be practically worthless, but is positively misleading.

The chief source of error in compiling these lists has been an imperfect understanding of the changes made in the manner of constituting these officers. Before the presidency of Dudley there had been no such officer as Attorney General in the colony. Under Dudley and his successor, Andros, the Attorney General was, of course, appointed, there being no assembly.

During the inter-charter period the office was continued, and was filled by election; since, however, there is no record of more than one election during that period, it must be assumed that the official tenure of Attorney General Checkley was during the pleasure of the General Court, or until the choice of a successor.

By the general proclamation for the continuance in place of persons in office, issued by Sir William Phips, the first Governor under the province charter, Checkley remained in office according to his former holding, until ¹ This historical outline is a statement by A. C. Goodell, Jr., appearing in the 1895-1896 PROCEEDINGS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

October 28, 1692, when he received a commission from the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council, to hold during the pleasure of the crown. This precedent was followed by Governor Dudley in 1702, in the appointment of his son Paul to this office.

In 1715, however, a report having gained credence that a new Attorney General, bearing a commission directly from the crown, was coming over to take the office, the House of Representatives raised the question of the right of the Governor and Council to appoint. Their claim was that the authority conferred upon the Assembly, by the charter, to name and settle, annually, all civil officers excepting those whose election and commission had been previously reserved, in the same instrument, to the crown, or the Governor of the province, included the Attorney General. On the other hand, the practice which had prevailed from the beginning of the first administration was founded upon a previous clause in the charter granting and ordaining that it should be lawful for the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, to nominate and appoint, besides the judges and certain other enumerated officers, other officers "to our Council and Courts of Justice belonging." The received opinion was that the Attorney General was within this exception—he being, as was alleged, an officer of the courts.

The Council, though at first disputing the claim of the representatives, eventually conceded it, probably upon the strength of the support it received in the opinion of that eminent lawyer, Sir Edward Northey, Attorney General of England. The result of this controversy was the election of Paul Dudley in 1716, and of his successors in office down to and including Joseph Hiller.

In 1729 the old dispute was renewed in the Legislature upon the authority of Sir Robert Raymond, son-in-law of Northey, and his successor in the office of Attorney General, who, jointly with the Solicitor General, Sir Philip York, officially gave an opinion directly opposite to that expressed by Northey. This opinion was in a report to the Lords of Trade upon the memorial of Governor Shute, in which they certified that they were of the opinion that the House of Representatives had made great encroachments on his Majesty's prerogative in joining in the election of the Attorney General, and had "assumed to themselves the exercise of powers neither warranted by this charter nor given them by law." It would seem that the fact that Sir Robert had given his opinion, with his reasons, at length, the year before, and that it had been thus reaffirmed and corroborated, was known to Lieutenant Governor Dummer in 1724; since, upon the election of John Read, that year, he submitted to the Council the question of the legality of the proceeding; and notwithstanding they advised that the election was in accordance with the charter, and though Read was preeminently fitted for the office, Dummer withheld his consent to the election. In 1729, however, upon the question of proceeding to choose an Attorney General, the Council at first refused to join with the House. This refusal was repeated the next year; but in 1731, and thereafter, until 1749, both branches annually joined in the election—

the Governor or Lieutenant Governor for the time being withholding his consent, by excepting from the list of officers elected the person chosen Attorney General, and adding to the usual form of his certificate of approval a negative, concluding with the words, "there being an Attorney General already duly appointed."

In 1749 the Council decided to put an end to this farcical annual performance, by persisting in their refusal to join in the election of Attorney General. This led to a lively controversy, in which the whole dispute was reviewed, and discussed with great acuteness and ability. The result, however, was the abandonment, until the Revolution, of the election of Attorney General.

In 1775 the subject was again seriously and deliberately considered, and, after two years, a choice by the whole Assembly was decided to be conformable to the requirement of the charter; and this continued to be the rule until the power was revested in the Governor and Council by the ninth article of the first section of the second chapter of the Constitution.

The preceding sketch affords an explanation of the record in the legislative journals of numerous elections, seemingly regular, and yet conflicting with other entries, of appointments by the executive. These apparent inconsistencies have led to many gross errors in the attempt to get at the real facts without exhaustive research.

In the case of the absence of the Attorney General, or of a vacancy in the office, the courts assumed authority to appoint an attorney for the Crown, or for the State, pro hac vice. Hence such names as George Farwell or Farewell, William Brattle, James Otis, Robert Auchmuty, etc., have improperly crept into the list of Attorneys General; and others, who at some time actually held the office, are not mentioned, or recorded as serving at times when they were not in office.

The commissions of oyer and terminer, as I have formerly had occasion to show at considerable length, were not of that class of established judicatories which, by the charter, were to be created by the Legislature, and they were not tribunals in which the Attorneys General appeared by virtue of their office. An attorney was usually specially appointed to conduct proceedings for the Crown in these courts. Such was the case in the court which tried the Salem witches, when Thomas Newton appeared for the Crown while Checkley was Attorney General. Newton, however, was superseded by Checkley after the latter had received a special commission to conduct those prosecutions.

By the following tables it appears that from 1686 to 1780 the office of Attorney General was filled seventeen times by election of the General Court (with the consent of the chief executive for the time being), and nine times during the same period the office was filled by executive appointment. The Solicitors General, as also the "Special Attorney General"—a solitary instance, and under a commission in force only about three months—were appointed. The sum of the years of service of the appointed attorneys, however, exceeds that of those holding by election about fifty-five years. The years in which there was no Attorney General regularly constituted are 1721 and 1724, and from September, 1774, to June 12, 1777, besides other shorter periods between successive terms.

The office of Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts was created by the 1780 Constitution of Massachusetts, Chap. II, Sec. 1.

In 1832 the Attorney General was required to make and submit a report to the Legislature at the commencement of each session including the business done by him during the preceding year by virtue of his office. (Laws of Massachusetts, 1832, Chap. CXXX, Sec. 8, p. 404.) These reports have been published annually since 1832.

The annual reports contain opinions for the respective years, but the Opinions since 1891 have been collected in a separate series and have been published at irregular intervals grouping the opinions of several years in each volume. The separate volumes have consecutive numbering.

"There has never been an index or digest published for the reports of the Massachusetts Attorneys General."—Letter, dated December 11, 1936, from the Office of the Attorney General, Boston, Massachusetts.

‡ Died September 10, 1767.

§ A refugee, 1774-75.

MICHIGAN

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of Michigan was created in 1807. (Vol. IV Laws of the Territory of Michigan (1884) p. 15.) Another act was passed in 1818 establishing this office. (Vol. I Laws of the Territory of Michigan, 1871, p. 503.)

The law creating this office was repealed August 5, 1824, but was revived April 21, 1825.

In 1833 another act was passed again establishing the office of Attorney General. It was made his duty to report to the Legislature of the Territory at the commencement of every session. (Vol. III Laws of the Territory of Michigan, 1874, pp. 1095, 1335.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Michigan was created by the 1835 Constitution of Michigan, Art. VII. The Legislature enacted a statute in 1836 stating that the duties of the Attorney General were the same as were prescribed by the laws of the Territory of Michigan. Under the Constitution of 1850, Art. VIII, Secs. 1, 2, it was provided that the office of Attorney General should be elective rather than appointive.

In 1838 the Attorney General was required to submit a report to the Legislature at the commencement of the annual session. (1838 Revised Statutes, Part I, Title III, Chapter I, Secs. 21, 22.)

MINNESOTA

The Organic Act of Minnesota passed by Congress on March 3, 1847, provided for an attorney for the new territory to "continue in office for four years, unless sooner removed by the President." (Organic Act of Minnesota, section 10, 1851. Revised Statutes of the Territory of Minnesota, 1851, p. 25.)

The second territorial assembly in 1851 provided for the appointment of an Attorney General by the Governor for a two-year term and set forth the duties of that officer. He was required "to appear in all suits on behalf of the territory, to give opinion to the legislative assembly or territorial officers when required," and was given "full power and authority to administer oaths." (Revised Statutes of the Territory of Minnesota, 1851, chapter 1, article 3.)

Article 5 of the Constitution of Minnesota, adopted in 1858, provided for an Attorney General "to be chosen by the electors of the State" for a two-year term. Chapter 5 of the Public Statutes of Minnesota, 1849-58, prescribed the Attorney General's duties in detail, but without a specific mention or provision for annual reports (section 68-85). These duties are again defined in the General Statutes of 1865 and in succeeding General Statutes. Chapter 6, section 34-44, and chapter 42, section 1, of the General Laws of 1865 provided for the printing of the Attorney General's reports, and chapter 42, section 8, for the printing and binding of the opinions.

In 1862 an act to provide for the collection and preservation of criminal statistics was passed (General Laws, 1862, chapter 30). County attorneys were to report the number and character of all criminal offenses, and the Attorney General was to append a tabular statement of offenses to his annual report.

In 1893, chapter 6, section 44, of the General Statutes was amended to require the Attorney General to "set forth in his report the opinions of general interest rendered by him." (General Laws, 1893, chapter 14, section 1.)

A brief statement of the present-day duties of the Attorney General is to be found in the Legislative Manual, 1935, p. 157.

MISSISSIPPI

The office of Attorney General of Mississippi was created by the 1817 Constitution of Mississippi, Art. V, Sec. 14.

No reports seem to have been published regularly until in 1890 the Attorney General was required to make reports at the beginning of each regular session of the legislature of the condition of the public service as administered in his office, and under his supervision; and to make any recommendation he may deem proper for the improvement of the service. (Annotated Code of Mississippi, 1890, Ch. 10, Sec. 187, p. 160.)

"There has been no index or digest published covering the Attorney General's Reports of Mississippi."—Letter, May 8, 1836, from the Mississippi State Library, Jackson, Mississippi.

MISSOURI

In 1806 the office of Attorney General was created for the Territory of Louisiana of which Missouri was then a part. (Laws of Louisiana and Missouri up to 1824, Chap. 17, p. 67.)

In 1820 the office of Attorney General of the State of Missouri was created. (Laws of Missouri, 1820, Chap. 279, p. 688.)

The Opinions of the Attorney General are available in manuscript form in the office of the Attorney General at Jefferson City, Missouri. No published record of these has been made by this office containing all of the cases and opinions with the exception that special important opinions have been published separately at irregular intervals.

The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri, in a letter dated, April 17, 1937, indicates that some opinions of the Attorney General may be found in the House and Senate Journals and Appendices. They have the following separate opinions which have appeared in published form.

1. Opinion of the Attorney General in Response to House Resolution of March 23, 1889. John M. Wood, Attorney General. 300 separate copies printed by House of Representatives, 35th General Assembly. 4 pp. n. p. n. d.
2. State University—Agricultural college. The Question of Separation. Report of Special Committee, Together with the Opinion of the Attorney General. Thirty-sixth General Assembly of the State of Missouri. Jefferson City, Missouri, Tribune Printing Company. 1891. 25 pp.
3. Opinion of Attorney General Edward C. Crow, of Missouri, on the question of the legal right of the United States Internal Revenue Department to require Revenue Stamps to be affixed to official State papers and documents. 14 pp. n. p. n. d. (1899.)
4. Opinion of Attorney General Crow, as to Legal Effect and Operation and Construction of Constitutional Amendments Submitted at Election November 6th, 1900. n. d. Jefferson City, Tribune Printing Co. Edward C. Crow. 18 pp.
5. Attorney General's Opinion on the Present Text Book Law. (March 6, 1903.) n. p. Edward C. Crow. 5 pp.
6. School Law, 1905. Herbert S. Hadley (April 1905). 7 pp.
7. Report of the Attorney General on the Maximum Freight Rate Law to the 44th General Assembly, December 26, 1906. Herbert S. Hadley. 12 pp. Hugh Stephens Printing Co., Jefferson City, Mo. (1907.) 1000 copies printed.
8. Opinion of the Attorney General Concerning New Supreme Court Building and Legality and Constitutionality of the Appropriation Therefor. April 20, 1907. Herbert S. Hadley. 20 pp. Hugh Stephens Printing Company, Jefferson City. (1907.) 1000 copies printed.
9. Opinion of the Attorney General Regarding Powers of the Public Service Commission. To the Senate February 23, 1915. John T. Barker. 1915. Hugh Stephens Co., Jefferson City. 8 pp. 5,000 copies printed.

(Two opinions were published by Attorney General North Todd Gentry during his term of office, but no copies of them have been located at the present time.)

There is uncertainty about the publication of the Reports of the Attorney General. The Attorney General's office writes, March 31, 1937, that the "official reports by the department may have been published in the past; however, we have no record of them other than since the present Attorney General, Roy McKittrick, took office."

Report of the Attorney General to the Fifty-third General Assembly of Missouri; Jesse W. Barrett, Attorney General. (December 31, 1924.) Hugh Stephens Press, Jefferson City. 7 pages. Note: This report appears, with separate pagination, in the Appendix to the House and Senate Journals of the Fifty-third General Assembly, State of Missouri, Volume 1. City of Jefferson, 1925.

Biennial Report of the Attorney General to the Fifty-eighth General Assembly of the State of Missouri, 1933-34. Roy McKittrick, Attorney General. 48 pp. n. p. n. d.

MONTANA

Prior to 1881 the District Attorney of the County of Lewis and Clark acted ex-officio as State's Attorney. By the Act of February 23, 1881 (Laws of 1881, p. 76-78) the office of Attorney General was first recognized. It was provided that "the District Attorney of the Judicial District in which the seat of government is situated shall be, ex-officio, the Attorney General of the Territory."

In 1885 by Act of March 12th, the Legislature abolished the offices of Attorney General, ex-officio, and of District Attorney of the Territory. (Laws of 1885, p. 61, Sec. 6.)

In 1887 by Act of September 14, the office of Attorney General of the Territory was created. (Laws of 1887, p. 60-61.) The Governor was given the power of appointment but this was not exercised by him until December 31, 1887.

When Montana became a State, provision for the office of Attorney General was made in the Constitution of 1889, Article VII, Sec. 1.

The Attorney General was required to report to the Governor during the Territory but no reports appear to have been printed prior to 1890. A report is required of him by the Constitution of 1889, Article VII, Sec. 19.

NEBRASKA

"The genesis of the office of the Attorney General of Nebraska is obscure and a matter of some controversy.

"By the Kansas-Nebraska Act of May 30, 1854, there was provided an attorney for the Territory of Nebraska, to be appointed by the President for a term of four years, who should receive the same fees and salary as the attorney for the Territory of Utah. The same organic act provided for the purchase of a territorial library 'to be kept at the seat of government for the use of the governor, legislative assembly, judges of the supreme court, secretary, marshal, and attorney for such territory and for such other persons and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law.'

"In his message to the territorial legislature on January 6, 1857, Governor Mark W. Izard refers to this passage in the following terms: 'The provisions in the organic act . . . confine the use of the library to the governor, secretary, judges of the territorial courts, attorney general, marshal, and members of the legislature.'

It would appear from this that the attorney for the territory and the attorney general were the same. Succeeding references in the territorial laws, however, indicate a contrary state of facts.

"By the act of February 4, 1857, 'for the relief of Experience Estabrook,' there was granted from the territorial treasury $100 for services in prosecuting cases for the state.

"On October 8, 1858, there was introduced in the upper house of the territorial legislature 'An act to prescribe the duties of attorney general.' On the following day this bill was indefinitely postponed.

"Instead of prescribing the duties of Attorney General the same legislature, on October 12, 1858, passed 'An act to abolish the office of Attorney General,' which reads as follows:

"Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the council and house of representatives of the Territory of Nebraska, That all powers and duties, of, belonging to, assumed or claimed by the Attorney General of this territory are hereby transformed (sic) and made to be the powers and duties of the district attorneys of the judicial districts in this territory, respectively.

"Sec. 2. The office of Attorney General is hereby abolished.

"Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

"The plain inference from the action of the territorial legislature, as above set forth, is that some one was assuming or claiming functions not assigned him by law. No other reference to the office of Attorney General appears in the statutes of the territorial period.

"The first state constitution of 1866 made no provision for the office of Attorney General. The first act upon the subject after Nebraska became a state was that of June 21, 1867, as follows: 'An act to authorize the governor to employ counsel in actions instituted by and against the state.

"Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Nebraska, That the Governor be and is hereby authorized and empowered to retain and employ such attorney and counselor at law as he may select to prosecute any and all actions necessary and proper to be brought to secure the rights of the State in and to any property owned or claimed thereby,

"Sec. 2. In any action which may be brought against the State or any of its officers, in respect of the property mentioned in the first section of this act, process shall be served upon the Governor, and he shall have the same power in defending said action as is provided in said first section.

"Sec. 3. The Governor shall report to the succeeding legislature his action in the premises.

"Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

"The next step in the evolution of the office of Attorney General was the act of February 9, 1869, as follows:

"An act to define the duties of the attorney for the State and provide for his payment.

"Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Nebraska: That until there shall be an Attorney General for this State the duties of the attorney for the State whose appointment is provided for by the act approved June 21, 1867, shall, in addition to those devolved upon him by said act, be such as are usually performed by the Attorney General of a state.

"Sec. 2. The said attorney for the State shall receive as compensation for his services such sum as the Governor shall deem fair and just and as is paid in similar cases, to be audited and paid in same manner as the salary of state officers, and there is hereby appropriated, to be paid out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sum as may be sufficient for the payment of said attorneys as prescribed by this act.

"Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

"At the same session was passed an act, dated February 15, 1869, providing for the election of an Attorney General at the general election, defining his duties, fixing his salary at $1,000 per annum, and providing for appointment by the Governor until election. On February 27, 1873, a supplementary act was passed further enlarging and defining his duties.

"In the convention of 1875 which framed the present Constitution of Nebraska there was violent opposition to the continuance of the office of Attorney General. This opposition was not strong enough to abolish the office, but did secure a provision inserted in section 24 of article V of the Constitution providing that 'there shall be no allowance for clerk hire in the offices of the superintendent of public instruction and Attorney General.' The intent of this provision was to prevent the employment of any assistants in both these departments. Under the decision of the Nebraska Supreme Court (25 Neb. 669), made in 1889, it was held, however, that 'clerk' as here used had its common law meaning and did not include deputy or stenographer. Numerous helpers are now employed in both departments.

"In recent years this office has had need of additional legal help for special cases, notably for cases in the United States Supreme Court arising out of railroad regulation; hence the increasing appropriations."—Taken from Nebraska Blue Book, 1915, beginning at p. 204.

The office of Attorney General of the State of Nebraska was created by the 1875 Constitution of Nebraska, Art. IV, Sec. 1. Sec. 23 provides that the Attorney General, as an executive official, shall report to the Governor at least ten days preceding each regular session of the legislature, who shall transmit such reports to the legislature.

Letter received from the Nebraska State Library, dated April 15, 1936, states that, "We do not know of any digests covering the Nebraska Attorney General's Opinions."

NEVADA

In the act organizing the Territory of Nevada, an attorney for the territory was provided for. (1861 Laws of Nevada Territory, pp. xiii-xiv, secs. 10 and 11.)

When Nevada became a state, it was provided in the Constitution that there should be an Attorney General, elected at the same time and places and in the same manner as the Governor. (1864 Constitution of Nevada, Art. V, Sec. 19.)

In 1867 it was provided that the Attorney General should report annually, on the first day of January, to the Governor. (1867 Statutes of Nevada, Chapter LXVII, Sec. 5.)

"There has been no digest or index published covering these reports."—Letter, May 4, 1936, from the Nevada State Library, Carson City, Nevada.

The Constitution of New Hampshire, 1784, Part II (under Title "Executive"), provides for the appointment of an Attorney General by the Governor and Council. All compiled statutes preceding and including the GENERAL LAWS OF 1787 make no provision for a report to be made by the Attorney General other than such as concerned the monies handled. Such reports were to be made by the Attorney General (and solicitors) to the state treasurer, and to county treasurers (when concerned).

PUBLIC STATUTES OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, 1891, Chap. 17, Sec. 7, p. 87, provide for a report of a general nature (including opinions, recommendations, and monies handled) to be made by the Attorney General to the Legislature. . . . The reports of the treasurer show funds handled by the Attorney General's Department. "Despite the provision of the STATUTES OF 1891 for a report from the Attorney General to the Legislature, no record whatever is found of any report (as such) preceding the year 1896. . . ."—Letter, dated March 31, 1936, from the New Hampshire State Library, Concord, New Hampshire.

"No digests have been published for the New Hampshire Attorney General Reports."—Letter, dated April 7, 1936, from the New Hampshire State Library, Concord, New Hampshire.

NEW JERSEY

There was an Attorney General during the period of the Province or Colony of New Jersey. The Office of Attorney General of the State of New Jersey was created in the first Constitution of New Jersey in 1776, Art. XII.

The general duties incumbent upon the Office of the Attorney General were specified in the Public Laws of New Jersey, 1854, p. 131 and Revised Statutes of New Jersey, 1877, p. 56, but no provision for a report was made. In 1878, however, the Attorney General was required to make an annual report on the first day of November of each year for the Governor. (Laws of New Jersey, 1878, Ch. XIX, Sec. 3, p. 28.) This act was repealed by the 1882 Laws of New Jersey, Ch. CLI, p. 215.

"Annual reports were published irregularly, but none have been issued since 1909."—Letter, dated October 28, 1936, from the Office of Attorney General of New Jersey.

No record of the publication of an index or digest of these reports could be found.

NEW MEXICO

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of New Mexico was created in 1846. (Laws of the Territory of New Mexico, Kearney's Code, 1846.)

This office was abolished in 1889 and the office of Solicitor General was created in its place and he was required to perform all of the duties done by the Attorney General. (Acts of the Territory of New Mexico, 1889, Ch. 56, Secs. 1, 2, 3.)

The title of the office of Solicitor General was changed in 1905 to that of Attorney General but the office was to continue as it was except the change of name. (Acts of the Territory of New Mexico, 1905, Ch. 118, Sec. 1.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of New Mexico was created by the 1910 Constitution of New Mexico, Art. V, Sec. 69.

The Attorney General was required at least 30 days preceding each regular session of the Legislature to make a report to the Governor who was required to transmit it to the Legislature. (1910 Constitution of New Mexico, Art. V, Sec. 77.)

"There has been no digest or index to the New Mexico Attorney General Reports published."—Letter, July 10, 1936, from the Attorney General of New Mexico, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

NEW YORK

The first Attorney General of the State, Egbert Benson, was appointed by the Constitutional Convention of 1777, together with other officers deemed necessary to establish the new State Government. Afterwards, under the first Constitution, the Attorney General was chosen by the Council of Appointment. In the Convention of 1821 it was proposed that the Attorney General should be appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, but subsequently it was decided that the Attorney General, along with other State officers, should be chosen by the Legislature on joint ballot. See Lincoln's Constitutional History of New York, v. 2, at page 526, et seq.

The Constitution of 1846, Art. V, Sec. 1, made the office of Attorney General elective.

In 1889 the legislature passed a law requiring the Attorney General to report to it annually on or before February 1. Copies of all official opinions rendered by him during the year preceding the date of his report and deemed by him to be of general public interest were required to be included. (1889 Laws of New York, Ch. 200, Sec. 1.)

NORTH CAROLINA

The office of Attorney General of North Carolina was created in 1776 in Sec. XIII of the Constitution of Form of Government agreed to. (1776 Public Acts of North Carolina, (Vol. 1 Iredell, 1804) p. 194.)

No report was required until 1868, when the Constitution of 1868 provided that the Attorney General shall transmit his report to the Governor at least five days previous to each regular session of the General Assembly. The Governor was required to transmit it, with his message, to the General Assembly. (Constitution of N. C., 1868, Art. III, Sec. 7.)

"There is no digest of these reports."—Letter, May 9, 1936, from the Documents Librarian at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

NORTH DAKOTA

The office of Attorney General of the State of North Dakota was created by the 1889 Constitution of North Dakota, Art. 3, Sec. 82.

In 1890 the Attorney General was required to make an Annual Report to the Governor. (Laws of North Dakota, 1890, Chap. 21, Sec. 5.)

By the Laws of North Dakota, 1891, Chap. 99, Sec. 20, p. 265, the printing of 500 copies of the biennial reports of the State officers was required. This is the explanation of how the Attorney General began to have biennial reports published after the first report, 1889-90, covered a period of only one year.

No index or digest has been published for the North Dakota Attorney General Reports.

OHIO

During the days of the Northwest Territory and the Indiana Territory, both of which the present Ohio was then a part, there were officers who prosecuted the laws of the United States and were concerned practically entirely with Federal matters.

Before 1846, when the office of Attorney General was created, the prosecuting attorney of each of the counties, elected for a two year term by the people of the county, had the duty to prosecute for and on behalf of the State, all complaints, suits and controversies, in which the State was a party, in both the Supreme Court and Court of Common Pleas. (See Swan's Statutes of Ohio, 1841, pp. 737, 738.)

The office of Attorney General was created Feb. 16, 1846. (See 1846 General Laws of Ohio, v. 44, pp. 45-47.) He was required to report to the General Assembly annually before December 15th.

In 1915, an act was passed stating "The Opinions of the Attorney General shall not be included in his annual report, but shall be published by the state for each official year of his term as a distinct publication to be designated 'Opinions of the Attorney General'." (See 1915 Laws of Ohio, v. 106, p. 516, Sec. 779.1.)

"After 1914 this office did not publish reports."—Letter, July 23, 1936, from the office of the Attorney General, Columbus, Ohio.

"There is no compiled index or digest of the Ohio Attorney General Reports or Opinions."—Letter, June 8, 1936, from the office of the Attorney General, Columbus, Ohio.

OKLAHOMA

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of Oklahoma was created in 1890. (Statutes of Oklahoma, 1890, Art. 4, Ch. 82, p. 1155.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Oklahoma was created by the 1907 Constitution, Art. VI, Sec. 1.

It was made the duty of the Attorney General to report to the Governor semi-annually and as often as may be required by law. (The 1907 Constitution, Art. VI, Sec. 33.)

The reports were not published regularly as the list indicates. The only explanation seems to be that the lack of appropriation caused this situation.

"Some of the reports of the Attorney General were not published because of the lack of appropriation by the legislature."—Letter, September 8, 1936, from the Secretary of the Oklahoma Historical Society, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

OREGON

The first Constitution of the State of Oregon provided for the election of prosecuting attorneys as law officers of the State and of the Counties. (1857 Constitution, Art. VII, Sec. 17.)

The office of Attorney General of Oregon was created by the Legislature in 1891. (Laws of Oregon, 1891, p. 188, Sec. 1.)

In 1901 an act was passed by the Legislature requiring that 240 copies of the reports of the Attorney General be printed at the end of each session of the Legislative Assembly. (General Laws of Oregon, 1901, p. 270, Sec. 1.)

In 1915 the Attorney General was required to make a biennial report to the Legislature of all the official opinions rendered for the biennial period ending September 30th prior to the meeting of the Legislature. These reports were not to be printed. (Laws of Oregon, 1915, Ch. 196, Sec. 3.)

In 1921 the Attorney General was required to make a biennial report to the Legislature. All opinions rendered by him during that period must be printed and bound for distribution. (General Laws of Oregon, 1921, Ch. 251.)

PENNSYLVANIA

The office of the Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was created by the 1776 Constitution of Pennsylvania, Sec. 20.

In 1857 the Attorney General was required to report to both branches of the Legislature annually, on or before the second Tuesday of January. (Pennsylvania Laws, 1857, No. 308, Sec. 1.)

The Attorney General's Department was created in 1915. (Laws of Pa., 1915, p. 279, Sec. 1.)

The Department of Justice, which absorbed the Attorney General's Department, was created in 1923. (Laws of Pa., 1923, p. 498 and 548.)

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

The office of Attorney General for the Philippine Islands was created by Act No. 136 of the Philippine Commission, Chap. 3, Section 40, enacted June 11, 1901.

The Attorney General was required by Section 45(K) of Act No. 136 to make reports to the Philippine Commission through the Military Governor on Jan. 1 and July 1 of each year. This section was repealed by Act No. 1824 of the Philippine Commission which provided that annual reports of bureaus and offices should be rendered for each fiscal year ending June 30th. Act No. 2355 of the Philippine Legislature amended Act No. 1824 by requiring that annual reports should be made for each fiscal year ending December 31.

The opinions of the Attorney General were required to be published in a separate series by Act No. 523. These volumes include the opinions rendered between July 27, 1901 and Nov. 25, 1913. There are six volumes in this series and Vol. 6 was not published until 1929. No later opinions have been published.

By Act No. 4007 of the Philippine Legislature approved Dec. 5, 1932, known as "The Reorganization Law of 1932", it was provided that the Secretary of Justice shall be the Attorney General and legal adviser of the Government; and that the chief of the Bureau of Justice shall hereafter be known as the Solicitor General and, except as otherwise provided, all the powers and duties conferred by existing law upon the Attorney General as head of the Bureau of Justice shall be exercised by the Solicitor General.

PUERTO RICO

The office of Attorney General of Puerto Rico was established by the Organic Act, 1901, Sec. 18, passed by Congress.

The Attorney General is required by Sec. 21 to make a report through the Governor to the Attorney General of the United States as he may require, which is annually transmitted to Congress.

The Laws of Porto Rico, 1903, p. 141, Sec. 5, state that annually and whenever the Attorney General may deem it opportune, the Department of Justice shall publish a general report on statistics of the administration of justice in criminal matters in the entire island.

No record can be found of any publication of an index or digest for these reports and opinions.

The above historical outline of the office and list of Attorneys General of Rhode Island is taken from Rhode Island Manual (1933-34), pp. 105-109.

"There are no printed reports of the Rhode Island Attorney General."—Letter, dated May 22, 1935, from the State Law Library, Providence, Rhode Island.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The office of Attorney General seems to have existed long before the formation of the State of South Carolina. The Provincial Acts of 1721 refer to the existence of the Attorney General. The office seems to have existed even before that.

The first State Constitution of South Carolina in 1776 provides for the selection of the Attorney General by the General Assembly and Legislative Council. (Resolution XXII.)

The early printed reports of the Attorney General are found in the Reports and Resolutions of the General Assembly, which were printed and bound with Acts of South Carolina from 1790 until 1839. The Acts were then printed and bound separately. From 1839 until 1872 the reports of the Attorney General were published in the Reports and Resolutions of South Carolina and from 1873 to date they were published separately as well as being contained in the Reports and Resolutions.

The first requirement for the filing of a report by the Attorney General seems to be in 1868 when an act was passed requiring him to report annually to the General Assembly. (Acts of South Carolina, Special Session 1868, p. 88, Act No. 42, Sec. 8.)

"There is no index or digest for the reports or opinions of the Attorney General of South Carolina."—Letter received from the Law Library, University of South Carolina, Columbia, South Carolina.

TENNESSEE

"The office of Attorney General was created in 1831 and George S. Yerger was the first Attorney General and served from 1831-39. Back of that time there was a provision that the General Assembly should appoint one Attorney General to prosecute on behalf of the State whose duty it was to attend the County and Circuit Courts both in his district for that purpose and to attend to the appeals taken from the criminal cases, and the 'Attorney General within whose district the Supreme Courts are comprised shall attend to all criminal cases which shall be carried into said Court and perform all the duties thereunto required.'"—Letter, dated Dec. 8, 1936, from the Office of the Attorney General, Nashville, Tennessee.

The 1834 Constitution of Tennessee, Art. VI, Sec. 5, provides for the election by the legislature of attorneys for the State. The 1835 Acts, Ch. 51, p. 159-60 provides for the appointment of an Attorney General for the State of Tennessee.

"The opinions of the Attorney General of Tennessee have never been published or collected in any form, prior to the present time, except that the State Comptroller of the Treasury in 1914 collected the opinions of the Attorneys General, rendered from September 1902, to June 1914 and had the same bound for his personal use, which are now on file in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury and had compiled by Hon. R. T. Shannon index digest of the same, which was printed by the McQuiddy Printing Company at Nashville in 1914. Since the passage of the Reorganization Bill, Chapter 7, Acts of 1923, the opinions of the Attorney General's office have been frequent and numerous. So many questions have arisen in connection with the administration of the law that a demand has been made, especially among the officials of the State Government, for some systematic publication of the Opinions given by the Attorney General.

"In order to meet this demand, I am including in the present volume written opinions given to the various officials during my term of office, beginning approximately with the year 1927, down to and including the year 1930.

"Only such opinions have been eliminated as clearly had no general value or as were rendered obsolete by the repeal of the law upon which they were passed.

"A separate volume will be published of the opinions now on file in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury, previously referred to. There will also be collected and will appear in a separate volume, opinions of Attorney General Thompson.

"These opinions are being published as furnishing a guide to the future administration of my office, for the benefit of the officials concerned and for the public, who may be interested therein.

Attorney General."

(See p. vi of the Attorney General's Report of Tennessee, 1926-30.)

"The General Assembly has not made appropriation sufficient to publish additional volumes of the opinions."—Letter, dated April 14, 1936, from the Office of the Attorney General, Nashville, Tennessee.

TEXAS

There was an Attorney General during the period of the Republic of Texas. (Laws of the Republic of Texas, Vol. 1, 1838, p. 239.)

When Texas became a State, it was provided in the constitution that there should be an Attorney General nominated and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the senate. (1845 Constitution of Texas State, 1845, Art. IV, Sec. 12.)

In 1846 the Attorney General was required to report to the governor annually, on the first Monday of December. (1846 Laws of Texas, p. 207, Sec. 4.)

"There is no index or digest of these reports and opinions."—Letter, Aug. 20, 1936, from the Legislative Reference Librarian, Texas State Library, Austin, Texas.

UNITED STATES

The office of Attorney General of the United States was created in 1789. (Laws of the United States 1789, Chap. XX, pp. 139-140.)

In 1870 the Attorney General was required to have his opinions printed from time to time. He was also required to report at the commencement of each regular session of Congress in January for the preceding fiscal year. (Laws of U. S. 1870, Chap. 150.)

The opinions are published separately and numbered consecutively. The reports have been published since 1870 and appear annually.

UTAH

The office of the Attorney General of the Territory of Utah was established in 1851. (See Laws of the Territory of Utah, 1851, Sec. 7, p. 54.) No list of the Attorneys General who served during the period of the Territory could be found.

The office of the Attorney General of the State of Utah was created by the 1895 Constitution, Article VII, Sec. 1. The 1896 Laws, Ch. 38, defined the duties of the Attorney General.

The Attorney General was required to report to the Governor on or before the first day of December preceding the regular biennial session of the Legislature by the 1896 Laws, Ch. 38, Sec. 12, p. 123. Biennial reports have been published regularly since the first report, covering the biennium ending November 30, 1896.

"There is no digest or index to the Utah Attorney General Reports or Opinions."—Letter, dated April 20, 1936, from the office of the Attorney General, Salt Lake City, Utah.

VIRGINIA

COLONY:

It is not known when the office of Attorney General was established in the Colony of Virginia. "The office . . . is of very ancient origin and its duties and powers were recognized by the common law." (Michie's Digest of Virginia and West Virginia Reports, 1880.) The earliest known record of the office is the appointment of Richard Lee as Attorney General on October 12, 1643 (Minutes of the Council and General Court, 501).

Appointments to the Attorney Generalship were apparently made at first by the Council and General Court (Minutes, op. cit., 501, 227, 434), sometimes with a confirming grant from the King (See the letter of June 25, 1670 from Governor William Berkeley to Lord Arlington, printed in The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, 19:359-360, and the resulting grant from Charles II recorded in Minutes, op. cit., 515. See also the commissioning by the King in 1679 of an Attorney General with no earlier recorded appointment by the Council and General Court—Minutes, op. cit., 522). Later the Attorneys General may have been appointed by the Governor in Council, or simply by the Governor.

Two lists of the Attorneys General for the Colony have been printed (William G. Stanard's The Colonial Virginia Register . . . Albany, N. Y., 1902, p. 25, and in the William and Mary College Quarterly, 10:165-167), but they are incomplete even for known records. See, for example, the appointment of Robert Beverley in 1676 and the commissioning of Edward Hill in 1679 (Minutes, op. cit., 434, 522).

There were no regular reports of the colonial Attorneys General. The following will serve as examples of the scattered way in which their opinions survive:

Calendar of Virginia State Papers . . . Ed. Wm. P. Palmer. 1:100. An opinion of S. Thompson, 1706.

Virginia Colonial Decisions . . . The Reports by Sir John Randolph and by Edward Barradall of Decisions of the General Court of Virginia, 1728-1741. Ed. R. T. Barton. 2:B28-B29. An opinion of S. Thompson, 1713.

Reports of Cases Determined in the General Court of Virginia. From 1730, to 1740; and from 1768, to 1772. By Thomas Jefferson. p. 131. An opinion of John Randolph, 1772.

COMMONWEALTH:

The office of Attorney General was established with the Commonwealth. The mode of appointment is provided for by the Constitution and was originally by joint ballot of the two houses (Constitution of Virginia, 1776, Ch. 4, Sec. 13). Now (1936) the Attorney General is elected "by the qualified voters in the State at the same time and for the same return as the governor," who then commissions him (Constitution of Virginia, 1902, Art. 6, Sec. 107). The duties of the office are prescribed by law. In 1928 the office was placed under the Department of Law.

So far as is known, the Attorney General made no report until he was required by act of March 23, 1836 (1835 Virginia Acts, Ch. 43, Sec. 4) to report annually to the assembly what cases were pending. This he did for the four years 1837-1840. If a report was made thereafter until 1851, it is not known to have been printed. In 1847 and 1848 resolutions were passed by the assembly requiring an annual report to the Governor from all public officers of the State. This was made annually by the Attorney General from 1851 (with the exception of 1854) until the outbreak of the War. In the days of reconstruction only one report was made (1866). From 1872 to date (with the exception of 1884) the report has appeared regularly. Until the eighteen-nineties, however, the reports were scarcely more than lists of cases pending, sometimes with brief descriptive comments. For this reason, entries in the following list under the column "Period covered" represent merely the date of issue at first.

WASHINGTON

The office of Attorney General of Washington was first created in 1888, during the period of the Territory of Washington. It was made his duty to prepare and report to the Governor and Legislative Assembly at or before the commencement of each biennial session of the Legislature. (1887-88 Acts of Washington, Chap. VII, Sec. 7, p. 8.)

The office of Attorney General of the State of Washington was created by the 1889 Constitution, Art. III, Sec. 1.

The above 1st Biennial report was issued in three forms. One is a single volume bound in three-fourths sheep by the state printer and is marked "Vol. 1."

The second form consists of three separate parts with separate index pagination at the end of each part. The index pagination, however, is taken care of by overlapping numbering, so that the complete index may be found at the end of part 3 and the pagination is identical with the single volume edition.

The third form is bound in full leather and has only 252 pages, lacking the statistical report pp. 1-175.

Oct. 18, 1893-Jan. 16, 1895	Pt. II	p. 59-91
	Index	p. 87-91

The University of Washington Law Library has found that, in their set of "State Documents," a statistical report was published for the second biennial volume, covering the period Jan. 1, 1892-Jan. 1, 1894 and has 19 pages.

The second biennial report, however, is believed to have been published separately without the statistical report.

(Page 25-26 are index and are included again in index to Pt. II.)

The University of Washington Law Library has found that in their set of "State Documents," a statistical report was published for the third biennial volume, covering the period Jan. 1, 1895-Jan. 1, 1897 and has 11 pages.

The third biennial report, however, is believed to have been published separately without the statistical report.

WEST VIRGINIA

The office of Attorney General of West Virginia was created in 1862. (Acts of Assembly, 1862, Ch. 31, Sec. 1.)

By the 1868 Code of West Virginia, the Attorney General was required to report annually to the Governor. (Code of West Virginia, 1868, Ch. 120, Sec. 3.) This section refers to the Virginia Code of 1860, p. 241, which in turn refers to the Acts of Virginia, 1846, which require all public officers to submit reports in writing.

The legislature passed an act in 1873 requiring the Attorney General to deliver a report to the Governor annually. (1872-73 Acts of West Virginia, Ch. LIV, Sec. 3, p. 142.)

No reports seem to have been published before the one covering the years 1893-94 according to a letter dated Sept. 24, 1936, which was received from the office of the Attorney General, Charleston, West Virginia.

The Acts of 1909 required the Attorney General to preserve all his official opinions in his office and publish them in his biennial report. (Acts of West Virginia, 1909, Ch. 48, Sec. 2, p. 387.)

"So far as we know there has never been any digest or index published for the Reports and Opinions."—Letter, dated September 24, 1936, from the office of the Attorney General, Charleston, West Virginia.

WISCONSIN

The Organic Law establishing the Territory of Wisconsin in 1836 provided the governor with the necessary power to appoint an attorney general. Governor Dodge, the first governor, exercised this power December 7, 1836, appointing Henry S. Baird, attorney general.

The office of Attorney General of the Territory of Wisconsin was created by statute in the 1839 Statutes of the Territory of Wisconsin, p. 94, Sec. 1.

The office of the Attorney General of the State of Wisconsin was created by the 1848 Constitution of Wisconsin, Art. VI, Sec. 1.

The attorney general was required in 1901 to prepare a report to be delivered by him to the governor on or before December 10 in each even numbered year. (Laws of Wisconsin 1901, Ch. 94, p. 120, Sec. 1.)

Regular reports were published beginning in 1902 and opinions were included. In 1913 a separate series entitled "Opinions" and having successive volume numbering began. Reports were contained in some of the early volumes but none appeared after Vol. VII.

In 1917, Chapter 94 of the 1901 Laws of Wisconsin was added to Sec. 4978 of the Statutes repealing that section. As a result publication of the reports was then discontinued. The series entitled "Opinions" continued and is currently published.

"There is no separate index or digest to the Wisconsin Attorney General Reports or Opinions."—Letter, July 20, 1936, from the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin.

WYOMING

In the Organic Act creating the Territory of Wyoming, 1868, provision was made for the appointment of an attorney for the Territory. (1869 General Laws Wyoming, 1st Sess. p. 22.)

In 1886 the Territorial Legislature created the office of Attorney General of the Territory of Wyoming. They made it his duty to report to the Governor ten days next preceding the meeting of the Legislature. The first report to be published seems to be that for 1888-90. (Laws of Wyoming Territory, 1886, Ch. 38, Secs. 1 and 6.)

The State Legislature created the office and outlined his duties in 1899. (1899 Laws of Wyoming, Chap. 22, April 1, 1899.)

"No index or digest to the Wyoming Attorney General Reports has ever been published."—Letter, dated May 22, 1936, from the Wyoming State Library, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

DAKOTA TERRITORY

Upon the establishment of a government for this territory by Act of Congress, March 2, 1861, provision was made for the appointment of an attorney for the territory, whose duties included the enforcement of the laws of the United States in that territory.

In 1883, the Dakota Territorial Legislature provided for the appointment of an Attorney General for the Territory of Dakota and defined his duties. No provision seems to have been made requiring the filing or publishing of a report by him, but opinions in writing were required to be given upon all questions of law submitted by the governor, legislature, etc. (1883 Dakota Laws, Chapter 8, Sec. 1, p. 14.)

No record has been found of any published opinion or report.

[Benjamin B. Hawkes (or Hawks), 1823-24.]

Outlines of lectures delivered at Litchfield Law School by Judges Gould and Reeves, 1824. 2v.

These books do not contain the name of Benjamin B. Hawks, but bear bookplate of Francis L. Hawks. It may be presumed, since the date is that of Benjamin B. Hawks' attendance at the Litchfield Law School, that they were his notebooks and later came into possession of Francis L. Hawks.

CHANGES

Some additional information which has been received since the publication of my article should be recorded in connection with it. William S. Johnson's notebooks (p. 70) are in Columbia University Law Library, and Josiah Houghton's (ibid.) are in the Litchfield Law School Building. Among the unidentified sets in the Harvard Law Library (p. 69), the listing of "1803. v. 1. 4to" was an error, and the item should be cancelled; the "1803, 3v. 8vo" set has been identified as that of Lonson Nash; and the "1824-25, 4v., 4to" set has been identified as that of Caleb Stark, Jr., registered 1823.

Three errata in the original article should be corrected: the date of birth of William Van Duersen (p. 64) should have been 1783; Robert Sherman Baldwin (in the sketch of Ebenezer Baldwin, p. 69) should read Roger Sherman Baldwin; the heading Josias J. Coggeshall (p. 65) should read Josias H. Coggeshall.

I am grateful to Mr. Samuel H. Fisher, and to the librarians of the various institutions named, for their assistance in gathering this information. It is hoped that more sets may be identified and recorded.

CURRENT COMMENTS

What Are the Facilities of Your Library?

One sometimes wonders whether law librarians take as active a part as they should in making known to their clientele the facilities of their libraries. For example, one wonders whether more bar association libraries ought not to be following the example of Miss Olive C. Lathrop who runs a library page in the DETROIT BAR QUARTERLY, of Williard L. King who contributes "The Librarian Reports" to the CHICAGO BAR RECORD, of Mrs. Gladys W. Ringer who edits a periodical entitled "Videlicet" for the Indianapolis Bar Association Library, and of Mrs. Gladys Judd Day who edits "To Wit" for the Hartford Bar Library. There is always something of interest in these four contributions, leading one to think that bar association members are in many instances being deprived of help which they would be glad to have if their librarians were as active in this respect as the four persons mentioned.

Law school libraries in at least three instances are issuing publications concerning the activities of their libraries, or in regard to their history and collections. Examples are Duke University Law School Library's "Law School Bulletin," and the Law Library Bulletin issued by the law school of the University of Washington. Yale Law School Library issues a series of numbered pamphlets entitled "Yale Law Library Publications."

The Editor of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL would be glad to be informed of other similar columns or publications to be noted in later issues, and she would be glad to receive regularly annual reports issued by law libraries. This would enable her to take proper note in the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL of important developments in the law libraries of the country.

Index to Legal Periodicals to be Published Six Times a Year

Eldon R. James, Librarian, Harvard Law School Library, Editor of the INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICALS, announces that the INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICALS will in the future be published six times a year instead of four.

The schedule of publication for 1937-38 will be as follows: The September 1937 number will cover only the months of July and August. The November number will be a four months cumulation, including July, August, September and October. The January 1938 number will be a six months cumulative number covering July, August, September, October, November and December. The number for March 1938 will include only January and February 1938. The May 1938 number will cumulate January, February, March and April. The July 1938 number will be a cumulation of the previous twelve months.

The above schedule will be followed except in the years when the three-year cumulation is to appear, in which the May number will include only March and April and the July number only May and June.

As a three-year cumulated number is to appear this year, the schedule of publication will be modified in the way above mentioned, that is, the May number will include only March and April and the July number only May and June.

It is hoped that the new scheme of publication will make the INDEX TO LEGAL PERIODICALS even more useful than it is now.

Northwestern University Law Library Acquires a Collection From a Mediaeval Library

The Northwestern University Law Library has recently acquired the legal section of the library of a Viennese monastery whose collection was formed in the late seventeenth century. It consists of some thousand volumes upon roman and canon law, all printed before the middle of the seventeenth century, about thirty before the beginning of the sixteenth. The library was particularly rich in the decisions of the Rota Romana and those of the Rotae of Bologna, Ferrera, Macerata, Perugia, and Avignon. The Library's holdings in the field of papal decisiones, checked against Giuseppe Ermini's bibliography (Guida bibliografica per lo studio del diritto comune pontificio [Bologna, 1934] has been found quite complete. The acquired library contained many volumes in the field of mediaeval civil procedure, both at civil and canon law. Since these frequently take the form of commentaries upon passages of the corpus juris civilis and corpus juris canonici they provide traps for the unwary cataloguer. We note here for others who find the field a difficult one the usefulness of Professor van Hove's Commentarium Lovaniense in Codicem Iuris Canonici (Mechlinia-Roma, 1928) volume I. Some articles and volumes of importance to those who are concerned with mediaeval roman law are collected in my article Statuti in the Post-Glossators (11 Speculum 452, 453 n. 1).

S. E. Thorne Contributes to University of Toronto Law Journal

Professor S. E. Thorne, Librarian of the Northwestern University Law School Library, is twice represented in the issue of the UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LAW JOURNAL for the Lent Term, 1937. He has a leading article entitled Courts of Record and Sir Edward Coke, and he also is the reviewer of Selden Society Publication, Volume LIV, which is entitled YEAR BOOKS OF EDWARD II. Mr. Thorne's scholarly articles are bringing him merited recognition.

Fifty-five Institutions are Members of the American Association of Law Libraries

Nine new institutional members have joined the American Association of Law Libraries since the publication of the list of institutional members in the October, 1936, number of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL (L. LIB. J. 29:124). The new institutional members are:

Columbia University Law Library, New York City.
Cornell Law School Library, Ithaca, New York.
Fordham University Law Library, New York City.
Illinois Supreme Court Library, Springfield, Illinois.
Nevada State Law Library, Carson City, Nevada.
Social Law Library, Court House, Boston, Massachusetts.
University of North Carolina Law Library, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.
Vanderbilt University Law Library, Nashville, Tennessee.
Wake Forest College of Law Library, Wake Forest, North Carolina.
There are now fifty-five institutions which are members of the Association.

Proposed Oliver Wendell Holmes Collection of Jurisprudence
Endorsed by Bar Associations

The proposal to establish the Oliver Wendell Holmes Collection of Jurisprudence in the Law Division of the Library of Congress has been endorsed by five national organizations, including the American Bar Association, American Law Institute, Federal Bar Association, American Patent Law Association, and Trade and Commerce Bar Association. Twenty-seven state and twenty-one county and city bar associations have also passed resolutions endorsing the plan.

House Joint Resolution 19, now pending before the Library Committee of the House of Representatives, provides that the residuary fund from the estate left to the United States by the late Mr. Justice Holmes "be received by the Treasurer of the United States and immediately credited to the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, as a special fund to be known as the Oliver Wendell Holmes Memorial Fund, and to be administered in accordance with section 1 of the Act of March 3, 1925 (2 U. S. C. 157), creating such Trust Fund Board. The income of this fund shall be used for the purpose of building up and maintaining a collection of legal literature in the Law Division of the Library of Congress to be known as the Oliver Wendell Holmes Collection of Jurisprudence."

House Joint Resolution 237, which embodied the same provisions as House Joint Resolution 19, was unanimously adopted by the House of Representatives on June 15, 1935, but was not reported in the Senate before adjournment.

The use of the bequest for this purpose is appropriate and fitting, since Mr. Justice Holmes directly bequeathed to the Library of Congress his own private library, a large portion of which consisted of books on jurisprudence. The proposed collection could be developed upon the one thus bequeathed.

Arthur S. Beardsley Writes on Codes of Washington

Compiling the Territorial Codes of Washington, by Arthur S. Beardsley, Law Librarian, University of Washington, appeared in the January, 1937, issue of the PACIFIC NORTHWEST QUARTERLY (volume 28, number 1). This is the second in a series of articles on the codes of Washington to be prepared by Dr. Beardsley. The first article entitled, CODE MAKING IN EARLY OREGON, was published in volume 27, number 1, of the PACIFIC NORTHWEST QUARTERLY. Both articles are important contributions in the fields of legal history and legislation. They will be of value to the historian as well as to the lawyer.

Mr. Tutt's Case Book Reviewed in Illinois Bar Journal

A good review of that entertaining book, MR. TUTT'S CASE BOOK, by Arthur Train (Scribner's, New York, 1936), is published in the March, 1937, number of the ILLINOIS BAR JOURNAL (ILL. BAR J. 25:266).

The 1936 Annual Convention Proceedings of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners have been printed. Copies, at $6.00 per volume, may be obtained from the State Law Reporting Company, 30 Vesey Street, New York City.

Bill to Incorporate the National Association of State Libraries Introduced in the House of Representatives

A bill to incorporate the National Association of State Libraries was introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Walter of Pennsylvania on March 1, 1937. House Resolution 5174 names, as incorporators of a body corporate of the District of Columbia under the name of National Association of State Libraries, the following: Mabel R. Gillis, State Librarian of California; Horace E. Flack, Executive, Department of Legislative Reference, Baltimore, Maryland; Mrs. John Trotwood Moore, State Librarian, Nashville, Tennessee; Margaret C. Norton, Superintendent, Department of Archives, State Library, Springfield, Illinois; Irma A. Watts, Reference Librarian, Pennsylvania Legislative Reference Bureau, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Ella May Thornton, State Librarian, Atlanta, Georgia; A. J. Small, Acting State Librarian, Des Moines, Iowa; James Brewster, State Librarian, Hartford, Connecticut; Herbert O. Brigham, State Librarian, Providence, Rhode Island; Gilson G. Glasier, State Librarian, Madison, Wisconsin; Wilmer Lee Hall, State Librarian, Richmond, Virginia; Harrison J. Conant, State Librarian, Montpelier, Vermont; Henry E. Dunnack, State Librarian, Augusta, Maine; Harriet M. Skogh, Superintendent, General Library Division, State Library, Springfield, Illinois; Alice M. Magee, State Librarian, New Court Building, New Orleans, Louisiana.

The bill provides that the principal office of the Corporation shall be maintained in the city in which the President of the Corporation resides, but annual or other meetings may be held in any place in the United States.

Federal Register Discussed in Federal Bar Journal

The FEDERAL BAR ASSOCIATION JOURNAL for April, 1937 (FED. B. A. J. 3:37) contains an article which will be of interest to law librarians. It is by John J. Brauner, Editor of the FEDERAL REGISTER, who discusses the act establishing the FEDERAL REGISTER and its provisions requiring the filing of departmental documents with the Division of the National Archives which publishes the Register. Particularly important for law librarians to assist them in their reference work and in giving advice to readers, is the discussion of the different kinds of documents which are published. Some of these do not become effective until they are filed and published, and others are there for convenience only.

Mr. S. D. Klapp, Librarian of the Hennepin County Law Library, Minneapolis, Minnesota, a former president of the American Association of Law Libraries, and for some years past, the Editor of the LAW LIBRARY NEWS, has now returned to duty after several months of serious illness.

Miss Grace Williams Bacon, cataloguer in the Yale Law Library, will spend part of the summer of 1937 on a European tour, during which she will visit the following countries: England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and France.

Index to Constitutional Review and George Washington Law Review

A cumulative topical index to all issues of the CONSTITUTIONAL REVIEW (vols. 1-13) and the GEORGE WASHINGTON LAW REVIEW (vols. 1-5) will be published by the GEORGE WASHINGTON LAW REVIEW in May, 1937. The index will be published as a part of, or as a supplement to, volume 5, number 4, GEORGE WASHINGTON LAW REVIEW.

University of Newark Law Review Will Publish Cumulative Index

Mr. Sidney S. Prestup, Business Manager, announces that volume 2, number 2, of the UNIVERSITY OF NEWARK LAW REVIEW (Summer, 1937) will contain a cumulative topical index to all issues of the MERCER BEASLEY LAW REVIEW, the NEW JERSEY LAW REVIEW and the UNIVERSITY OF NEWARK LAW REVIEW from 1932 to date.

The UNIVERSITY OF NEWARK LAW REVIEW commenced publication May, 1936 (volume 1, number 1). This new periodical, published by the School of Law of the University of Newark, Newark, New Jersey, is a merger of the MERCER BEASLEY LAW REVIEW and the NEW JERSEY LAW REVIEW. The following constitute a complete set of the MERCER BEASLEY LAW REVIEW, the NEW JERSEY LAW REVIEW and the UNIVERSITY OF NEWARK LAW REVIEW to date:

MERCER BEASLEY LAW REVIEW

- Vol. 1, no. 1 (Jan. 1932); vol. 1, no. 2 (May 1932).
- Vol. 2, no. 1 (Jan. 1933); vol. 2, no. 2 (May 1933).
- Vol. 3, no. 1 (Jan. 1934); vol. 3, no. 2 (May 1934).
- Vol. 4, no. 1 (Jan. 1935); vol. 4, no. 2 (May 1935).
- Vol. 5, no. 1 (Jan. 1936).

NEW JERSEY LAW REVIEW

- Vol. 1, no. 1 (Jan. 1935); vol. 1, no. 2 (May 1935).
- Vol. 2, no. 1 (Jan. 1936).

UNIVERSITY OF NEWARK LAW REVIEW

- Vol. 1, no. 1 (May 1936).
- Vol. 2, no. 1 (Spring 1937).

Maryland Law Review

The MARYLAND LAW REVIEW began publication in December, 1936, with the following announcement: "The establishment of the Review is the realization of a long-felt desire for a legal journal devoted to Maryland law and matters of interest to Maryland lawyers. * * * There are already sufficient national or general law reviews available for those whose interests run to matters of such broad scope. The Review feels that there is a definite place for the local legal journal and it is planned to make this one of such a nature."

The Review is published quarterly during the academic year in December, February, April and June. The Editorial and Business Offices are located at the University of Maryland School of Law, Redwood and Greene Streets, Baltimore, Maryland. Subscription price, $2.00 per year. Single copies, seventy-five cents. Checks should be made payable to John Ritchie III, Business Manager.

Kentucky State Bar Journal

The KENTUCKY STATE BAR JOURNAL began publication with the December, 1936, issue. It is published quarterly on the fifteenth day of December, March, June and September by the Kentucky State Bar Association, Frankfort, Kentucky. The Assistant Editor and Business Manager is Samuel M. Rosenstein, Esq., Secretary of the Association, Frankfort. The Editor is E. H. Smith, Esq., of Glasgow.

BOOK REVIEWS

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS AND THEIR USE. By Laurence F. Schmeckebier. Washington: The Brookings Institution, 1936. xiii, 446p.

Recent years have seen a considerable awakening of interest among librarians in government documents, particularly in those published by the Federal Government. Scarcely any library large or small to-day thinks of them as mere shelf-fillers accumulating dust, and not worth cataloguing. Miss Boyd's United States government publications as sources of information for libraries (Wilson, 1931), and Wilcox's United States reference publications (Faxon, 1931-32), are evidences of this interest, as is also the American Library Association's Public Documents Committee which since 1932 has published an annual volume of the proceedings of its sessions. The activities of the Superintendent of Documents of the Government Printing Office are promoting an interest in these publications, by dignified advertising and by the issuance of increasingly more satisfactory catalogues and indexes. Such efforts are appropriate because "in number and variety, the publications of the government of the United States probably exceed those of any other government or of any commercial publisher." So says Mr. Schmeckebier in the introduction to his work just issued by The Brookings Institution. That this organization should have thought such a book worthy of a place in its Studies in Administration series is itself significant. It is designed for the use not only of librarians, but also of writers, investigators and students. Most of the persons in the last three groups have in the not-remote past had their only access to the vast storehouse of fact and knowledge contained in documents through the intercession of librarians.

Here there is presented, not a catalogue or list of documents, but a volume, the purpose of which is "to describe the guides that have been provided, to indicate the limitations and uses of the indexes, to explain the systems of numbering and methods of titling, to call attention to some outstanding compilations or series of publications in several fields, and to indicate how the publications may be obtained."

The series and publications selected for detailed description happen to be those of special interest to law librarians. They are grouped under the headings Congressional Publications, Federal and State Constitutions, Federal Laws, State Laws, Court Decisions, Administrative Regulations and Departmental Rulings, Presidential Papers and Foreign Affairs. These are dealt with in Chapters V to XII. There are chapters also on subjects less directly of interest to law librarians, on maps and on the scientific studies issued by a number of departments.

Of importance to all users of documents are the descriptions of the general indexes and bibliographies. Librarians have long been acquainted with them, but it is helpful, nevertheless, to have indicated in detail their merits, defects, and limitations. This is one of the most useful features of the book, since the author has been tireless in pointing out these peculiarities, with reasons for their existence.

By no means all of the limitations are due to faulty indexing, but rather to inconsistencies in the documents themselves. When documents are printed in several different forms, sometimes with different pagination and slight variations in the text, it is not strange that index references should occasionally mislead. An example of the kind of information given is that which explains why the daily and permanent editions of the Congressional Record differ both as to content and pagination.

In general, the author's treatment is methodical and objective, but so straightforward as to hold the interest. Occasionally he interjects an opinion, as when he says that Congressional Hearings "are the most important publications originating in Congress, but they are the most elusive, due to defective title pages and inadequate methods of distribution."

The book is a welcome addition to the literature of the subject. Such few errors and omissions as have been observed are not of a kind which affects its usefulness.

LAW OF THE LAW LIBRARY IN CALIFORNIA. By THOS. D. McLEAN. Rev. ed. San Diego, Author, 1936. [6], 118, xv p. $5.00.

Mr. McLean explains in his preface that he undertook this study to satisfy himself regarding his legal position as the newly appointed librarian of a California county law library.

In California the State law establishes county law libraries supported by publicly raised funds, and governed by "boards of trustees." Mr. McLean's thesis is that these trustees are not public officers. The library, he contends, is not part of the county government, nor yet an arm of the State government, but is simply a public trust administered as a state institution by ordinary trustees. This, of course, is a very comfortable conclusion if one wishes to be free of control by the county government, or by State officials, and, most important, if one prefers to be beyond the reach of civil service provisions.

In developing his thesis Mr. McLean is forced to put considerable reliance on statutory interpretation, as few court decisions are pertinent, but his points are well made, and the decisions he cites are used tellingly. He is particularly convincing in his arguments to the effect that the trustees and employees are not county officers or employees in California, but it would seem that he is not entirely clear and has left much unsaid as to their status as State officers or employees within the meaning of various provisions of the Constitution and laws of California. His most important citation on this point is People v. Provines (1868) 34 Cal. 520, which he contends held that the office of library trustee is not an office of government, but a careful reading of the decision shows that the court merely held that the State library trustees are not part of the executive or legislative departments of government within the meaning of the provision for the separation of powers in the California Constitution, which in the case of the executive department embraces only certain important State officers, specified in the Constitution, and their functions. The omission of the library trustees from the list does not make them any less State officers than does the omission of any subordinate State officers, under this decision.

Anyone interested in the legal status, in any State, of a periphery institution such as a library, museum, art gallery, or county fair, which has a governing board or "trustee," might well consult this volume for points to be considered, and for some useful citations to authority.
